Manufacturing was one of the hardest hit industries during the recession, losing 2.7 million jobs.

In the recovery, it recouped 1.7 million jobs, mostly for those with at least some college education.